

TO REVISE THE TARIFF

Gov. Wilson Will Call Extra Session of Congress About April 15

New York, November, 16.—Governor Wilson announced last night that immediately after his inauguration he would call an extraordinary session of Congress to convene not later than April 15, for the purpose of revising the tariff.

The President elect will sail for Bermuda tomorrow at 2 o'clock in the afternoon for a vacation and will return on December 10. To set at rest in the meantime the speculation as to what he would do with regard to tariff revision, he issued the following statement:

"I shall call Congress together in an extraordinary session not later than April 15. I shall do this not only because I think the pledges of the party ought to be redeemed as promptly as possible, but also because I know it to be in the interest of business that all uncertainty as to what the particular items of tariff are to be should be removed as soon as possible."

Beyond this announcement, the Governor said he had nothing further to say. Most of the opinions he had received from public men seemed to be in favor of an extra session of Congress he declared.

The Governor did not intend to express himself about an extra session so soon after his election, although he favored the idea because the present arrangement would not bring the new Congress into session until thirteen months after his election, he had expected to spend more than that time in collecting public opinion. With the time to be consumed in discussion the Governor felt that an extra session were not called the benefits of tariff revision would be postponed for practically two years.

The Governor was also impressed by the argument that with an early announcement as to an extra session, the Democratic leaders in Congress could begin to take counsel at an early date, so that much of the preliminary detail could be worked out before Congress convened on April 15. The Governor was prompted incidentally in making his early announcement by the fact that many members of Congress were desirous of arranging for accommodations in Washington for the extra session if there was to be one.

Though the President elect intends to rest while in Bermuda, he really expects to give a good deal of time to quiet thought about the problems that face him. He will sketch his annual message to the New Jersey legislature and will do some extensive reading of data on the tariff and monopoly question, banking and currency reforms and other issues.

The Governor came to New York tonight, to attend the dinner in his honor by his classmates, Princeton '78. He expects to have no political conferences while in the Metropolis and seemed fully confident that he would not be disturbed by any political callers while resting in Bermuda. All of the prominent men in the campaign just closed, the Governor said, knew his intention of postponing the consideration of political subjects until his return.

ASSESSORS GO AHEAD

Turn Books Over to Town Treasurer Regardless of the State Commissioners

The tax assessors of the town of New Castle ignoring the admonitions of the state board of tax commissioners, have turned over their books to the town treasurer, and the collection of the 1912 taxes is under way. While no remonstrance has been made by the state board, it is known that this action by the selectmen of the town is not approved and that there will be a final accounting.

When the tax lists of the selectmen were made up and sent to the state tax commissioners, the board at Concord immediately sent back word that the town's valuation was placed too low by the assessors. Subsequently there was a hearing at Concord. The basis of the hearing was to ascertain why the selectmen

CHAMBERLAIN HAS NO DISGUST

He Flatly Denies the Words Credited to Him.

New York, November, 15.—President E. J. Chamberlain of the Grand Trunk Railroad issued a statement tonight in which he characterized as harsh and unfair the statement issued by Herbert A. Rice and William C. Bliss after a conference between him and the Rhode Island officials, today over the Southern New England railroad situation.

Mr. Chamberlain denies that he said as reported, the he was disgusted with the people of New England. He used the word disappointed he said, in alluding to their attitude over the suspension of work on the road's projected extensions in New England.

"It is inconceivable," said President Chamberlain in his statement that either Mr. Bliss or Mr. Rice should gain such an impression from any statement which I made this morning. I know the people of New England too well, and admire them too much to express disgust in respect to any action they may or may not take.

I did not say that I was disgusted with the people of New England. I said that I was disappointed with the people of New England, especially with the people of Rhode Island for action they had taken in connection with the Southern New England matter.

I did state that the discontinuance of work on the Palmer extension was a part of general curtailment of construction at this time of year.

"In answer to urgent requests that I state definitely, when work should be resumed, I replied to them that it depended on weather conditions and our board of directors."

President Chamberlain said he was satisfied with the report of what he had said about non discrimination in resumption of construction work of his statement that at conferences with the New Haven officials abandonment of the Palmer extension has not been discussed and the matter of reimbursement had not been considered.

The Rhode Island officials' version of what he had said about the apparent attitude of Rhode Island people with regard to the road's millions of expenditures in that state was not a fair statement," Mr. Chamberlain continued.

"Mr. Bliss," the statement says dwell very much on the fact on the state of Rhode Island, having granted a charter to the railway company and great obligations on account of that charter. I acknowledge the obligation so far as the railroad company is concerned but also suggested that inasmuch as our stockholders had furnished the Providence line $2,000,000, in the past season and expected to furnish more in the future, they had a right to be considered in the prosecution of the work.

"Mr. Bliss stated that the state of Rhode Island and the city of Providence had made large harbor improvements on account of the Southern New England railway. I asked them whether they had given the Southern New England any exclusive use of them, and he replied that they had not, and admitted that they were public property and not the property of the Southern New England."

"I did not say that I had never personally favored the Palmer extension as a financial proposition. The gentlemen must have misunderstood me on that point."

What he is reported as having said about the origin of the project for the Grand Trunk extension into New England was practically correct, he states except the last clause, which says, "but Mr. Fitzhugh should not be blamed if the extension was abandoned." I did not intimate even that the extension would be abandoned.

Mr. Bliss himself made the statement that if traffic agreements were made with the New Haven road there would be less reason for the construction of the Palmer extension. It was not my statement.

"Mr. Bliss said that my extension from White River Junction to Boston would be paralleling existing lines, but did not consider that this was so with the Palmer extension, and I stated that he was probably right."

"I stated that under normal conditions, the road was amply able to finance the extension, not simply, could not be considered."

"Mr. Bliss wanted to know if general criticism of the suspension of work on the Palmer extension would influence the directors unfavorably, and I replied, 'It might.'"

"On the whole I consider the statement of Mr. Bliss and Mr. Rice harsh and unfair. No notes whatever were taken during the conference, which they say was an hour's interview, and as they were quoting from memory I think they should have taken greater care in drawing up their statement."

CLAIM CANNOT BE MAINTAINED

Edwin Jones Says Amendment Adoption Doesn't Elect Felker

The claim advanced from democratic sources that the ratification of the eighth amendment proposed to the constitution, which has just been definitely ascertained from the official returns to the secretary of state, would make it applicable to the recent election for state officials has created some doubts in the minds of some partisans if such claim cannot be maintained. The amendment substitutes the word "plurality" for that of "majority" wherever it occurs in the constitution relative to the election of governor, councilors and senators. The claim advanced is that as the amendments that are approved go into effect when the governor proclaims the result, which is to be done next month, and as the legislature will not canvass the returns for governor and councilor until the January following, the legislature will be governed in its findings by the revised constitution rather than by the present provisions. In that case, the democratic candidate for governor, two democratic candidates for councilor, and one republican candidate for councilor, would be declared elected on the face of the returns, because having a plurality but not a majority of the votes.

Edwin P. Jones, the well known Manchester lawyer and president of the Constitutional convention, gives his opinion as follows:

"The claim that because Mr. Felker received a plurality of the votes cast for governor at the election held Nov. 5, and because the proposed amendment to the constitution, No. 8, submitted to the people for action on the same day was ratified by them, thereby Mr. Felker was chosen governor and must be so declared by the legislature when it meets on the first Wednesday of January, seems to me to have no foundation whatever in law or in reason. The amendment will take effect when proclamations shall be made by the governor to the effect that two-thirds of the voters voting upon the proposed amendment have voted in the affirmative. This proclamation cannot in the order of things be made for several weeks after Nov. 5. The election on Nov. 5 was held under the provisions of Article 41, part second of the Constitution of New Hampshire. That article provides that "if no person shall have a majority of votes, the senate and house of representatives shall, by joint ballot, elect one of the two persons having the highest number of votes, who shall be declared governor." The election was held under the power of that article, and the determination of the result of the election must be governed by the same article. The ratification of the amendment can have no retroactive effect. It will be the duty of the legislature on the first Wednesday of January next, after canvassing the votes and finding that no candidate received a majority of all the votes cast for governor, to proceed to elect either Mr. Felker or Mr. Worcester governor.

"The provision made by the constitutional convention excepting the election and membership of the legislature of 1912 from the effect of any amendment adopted had reference to proposed amendments 1 and 2, which changed the number of the senate and house of representatives, and was intended to avoid any dispute over the constitution of those bodies. Even for this purpose the provision was not necessary but was adopted as an extra precaution. The election of governor and of councilors coming on the same day with the voting upon the proposed amendment was necessarily held under the existing constitution, and the result of that election must be determined in accordance with the same existing constitution."

Stars of Yale and Princeton Elevens to Clash in Annual Battle on the Gridiron

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 16.—The elevens of Princeton and Yale are ready for the annual game on the gridiron to be played here today. The two teams are evenly matched, and a hard fought battle is anticipated. Yale has the advantage in weight and has a stronger attack.

The Tiger boys have the speed and a better defense. Lefty Flynn Yale's star fullback, is picked as the man whom the Tiger boys must watch. Yale adherents were disappointed over the poor showing of the team against the Brown team recently. Since then there have been a few changes which have strengthened the eleven. This will be the thirty eighth time the two elevens have met. Of the thirty seven games played Yale has won twenty and Princeton ten. Seven games ended with the score tied. The first battle was staged in New Haven in 1878 and was won by the Tigers, three goals to none. The probable lineup of the elevens will be Yale—Bomester, left end; Sheldon, Talbot, left tackle; Cooney, left guard; Keicham, center; Pendleton, right guard; Warren, right tackle; Avery, right end; Wheeler, quarterback; Philbin, left halfback; Spalding, right halfback; Flynn, fullback. Princeton—H. Waller, left end; Phillips, left tackle; Shenk, left guard; Blumenthal, center; W. Smart, right guard; Pendleton, right tackle; Wright, right end; S. Baker, quarterback; E. Waller, left halfback; H. Baker, right halfback; De Witt, fullback. Picture shows scene in recent Brown game. Yale men failing to block a kick.

BULGARIANS FLANKED THE TURKS

Now Within Troops and Capital--
Armistice Agreed Upon.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 15.—Bulgarian troops have reached the vicinity of Killos, on the Black Sea Coast, at the entrance to the Bosphorus, and within a few miles of the capital. The men belong to the Turkish lifeboat station have left.

AGREED ON ARMISTICE.
Special News Agency Dispatch From Roumania So Assure About Bulgaria and Turkey.
London, Nov. 15.—Bulgaria and Turkey have agreed upon an armistice according to a special news agency dispatch, which reached this city this afternoon from Bucharest, Roumania.

TURKISH ARMY FLANKED.

Bulgarians Have Got in its Rear at Killos, Which is Close to Therapia, Constantinople's Resort.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The announcement that the Bulgarians had reached the vicinity of Killos, came in a single line telegram from Constantinople the afternoon. It lifts a corner of the veil which has been balking observers for some days regarding the movements of the victorious invaders in front of the Ottoman capital.

Their appearance at Killos shows that they have managed to creep round behind what is known as the forest of Belgrade, on the outskirts of Constantinople, and are now in close proximity to Therapia, the summer resort of the residents of Constantinople. From Therapia a good road leads to within a few miles of Killos.

Nothing yet has come to hand to show whether the Bulgarians at Killos are in strong force or merely a detachment of cavalry scouts, blazing a new route of approach to the Turkish capital. There is a strongly defended fort at Killos, but this was constructed to defend the place from attack by sea, and may be open to assault on the land side.

Killos is only three miles west of Cape Rumeli, at the Black Sea entrance to the Bosphorus, and is about double that distance to the northward of Therapia.

The dash of the Bulgarian troops seems to demonstrate that Gen. Savoff, the Bulgarian commander-in-chief, is not wholly depending on a formal attack on the line fortifications at Teatalia.

If a strong Bulgarian force is already at Killos, on the flank of the Turkish Army, the fate of the Ottoman troops cannot, in military opinion, remain long in doubt, if the Bulgarian troops decide to enter Constantinople before a definite armistice is agreed to.

Progress of the Negotiations.

For the moment the action of Turkey in applying direct to King Ferdinand of Bulgaria for an armistice has superseded the proffers of the Powers to mediate. No official news has yet come about the course the negotiations are taking. If the announcement made in Berlin be true that Osman Nizami Pasha, the Ottoman ambassador there, has been appointed first Turkish delegate to a Bulgarian Turkish peace conference, it would appear that the negotiations are making good headway.

That an early peace is assured is accepted as a foregone conclusion, but whether it will be brought about before or after the surrender of Constantinople is probably known only to King Ferdinand of Bulgaria and his advisers. The differences between Austria-Hungary and Serbia are evidently in a fair way toward settlement, but Montenegro, which jumped into war ahead of its allies, seems loath to relinquish any of the spoils gained by the fighting.

Clean Advertising Is On the Increase.

Prof. Talcott Williams of the Columbia University school of journalism, in his talk on advertising ethics just given before the Sphinx Club of the metropolis, testified to recent careful comparison of present day journalism with that of a generation ago, having in mind advertising ethics. Scrutiny of the columns shows a striking gain in decency and honesty. That most of the improvement has come within a decade was the assertion of another expert onlooker whose journalistic experience has made him a competent witness, especially of conditions in New York city.

That there has been a decided uplift of both theory and practice respecting solicitation and acceptance of advertisements, few informed men would dispute if there were to be a national poll of those competent to testify. Nor would there be much if any dissent from Professor Williams' contention that such improvement as has been registered is due mainly to forces working within rather than without the journalistic fold. Just because it has been a movement from within rather than from without has it gone as far as it has. But because this is so, why deprecate any action by society at large aiding in the process?

Speakers at the Sphinx Club banquet hardly did justice, in our opinion, to the value of federal and state legislation intended to aid in the process of raising advertising standards. Back of the organized group of advertising men pledged to put an end to false and vulgar forms of advertising and merchandising must stand public opinion and the law which society has framed penalizing offenders.

Journalists of the older generation, facing contemporary problems of the calling, are prone to make a fetish of liberty and to deride social action in connection with their business; whereas the fact is, as Jane Addams has pointed out in a recent number of the Survey, the next great task of the American democracy is to study the application to the business of publicity of ideals of justice, truth, honor and social service that are being insisted upon in every other sphere of national life.—Christian Science Monitor.

Ends the Third-Term Danger.

Having carried both branches of congress and probably more than three-fourths of the states, the democratic party is in position to put the country permanently beyond reach of the chief danger that confronted it in this campaign. There is now pending in congress an amendment to the constitution making the presidential term six years and barring any person who has served that length of time from further election. This is substantially the plan for which the reputed founder of the democratic party, Thomas Jefferson, contended in the convention which framed the constitution. It is the plan which he supposed up to the very close of the session that he had established. It is a thoroughly democratic principle. It is reaffirmed in the platform of this year by the plank which pledges Governor Wilson to a single term.

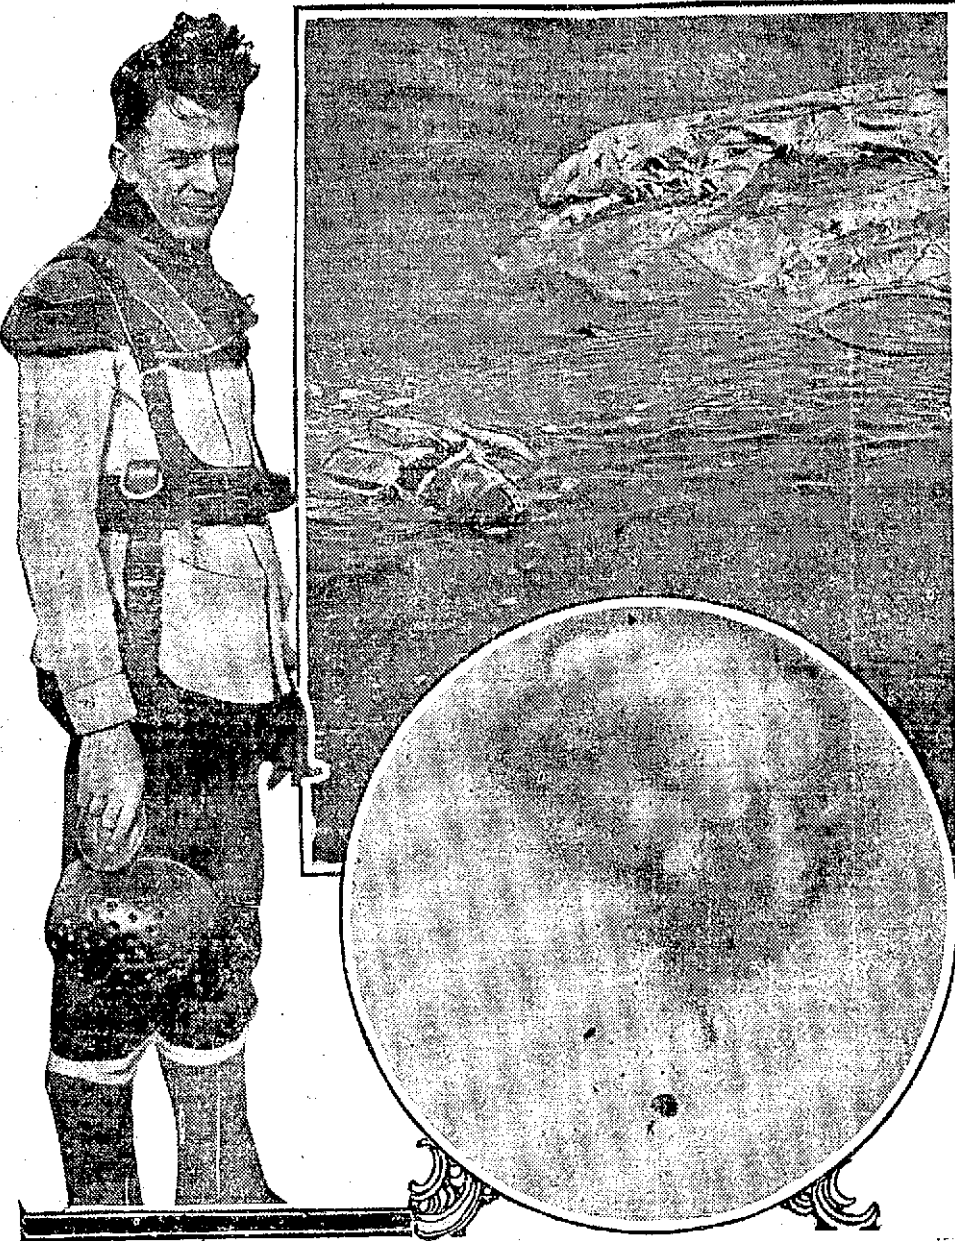

Moreover, the democrats may properly regard their great victory as a commission from the people to raise a permanent barrier against third-termism. About three-fourths of the qualified electors of the United States voted their hostility to third-termism. The democrats owe their triumph to this opposition to a third term.

While the verdict at the polls may be considered decisive so far as any present issue of third-termism is concerned, it is not wise or safe to wait until another third-term candidate appears before doing anything to remove this danger. The time to act is at the opening of the coming administration, when the need for the amendment will still be fresh in the public mind, and when the power to enact it will be concentrated in the hands of a single party. The democrats could use their victory to no more important purpose than to establish this permanent safeguard against excessive ambition.—Buffalo Express.

The New York World says custom alone, and not the constitution or any design of the founders of the government, puts thirteen months between the election of a Congress and its first regular session—between the voice of the people duly expressed and giving it effect in regular order. The framers of the Constitution specified the first Monday in December as the regular meeting time, unless Congress "shall by law appoint a different day." But they could have had no idea of how far beyond the election this date would come to be when the states were left with power to fix the times of election in lack of action by Congress. There is therefore nothing sacred about the misarrangement that exists. There is therefore nothing very extraordinary about calling a Congress into extra session at the outset of its term. Congress can readily change the regular meeting day for the first session from December to the March previous, and it becomes a question whether this should not be done.

The New York Sun remarks that the best evidence that could be asked of the genuinely pacific spirit of the great powers of Europe is to be discovered in the prompt fashion in which the latest tension has relaxed. This is the second time

Daring Aviator Who Blew Up His Balloon And Dropped Safely In His Parachute.

Photos by American Press Association.

Frank Rodman Law, a parachute jumper, added a thrill to the history of aeronautics when he blew up his balloon with dynamite and dropped 450 feet into the Hudson river just in front of Grant's tomb. Two dynamite bombs were attached to the balloon by long cords. Law used a cigar to light the fuse. He had stuffed his ears with cotton and also wore a helmet to protect himself against the force of the explosion. The bombs went off almost simultaneously, and Law was lost for an instant in the thick cloud of smoke which blotted out the balloon. He shot out of the smoke at a terrific pace, but his parachute opened in time to check his flight. At the left in the illustration is Mr. Law as he was dressed for the trip. At the lower right is a remarkable snapshot of Law descending. The other picture shows Law in the water just before he was picked up. Law did the stunt for a moving picture concern.

that Austro-Russian differences have seemed to threaten a general war, and again, as before, the "next friends of each" have intervened to moderate dangerous zeal. The most hopeful element in the present situation lies in the present attitude of France, England and Germany. In all three countries the governments and the people are frankly opposed to war. Thus, up to the present moment, there has not been any real interruption of friendly relations, and on the initiative of M. Poincaré the diplomacy of all three nations has kept in touch. What is more essential, mutual confidence has not been shaken.

Mr. Hollis of Concord will remain plain Mr. Hollis for the present at least.

Current Comment.

As Seen Through British Glasses.

The London newspapers do not always praise American politics and American politicians as correctly as they should. Though they probably do not err more frequently or flagrant than American newspapers in appraising British politics and British politicians. Easily negotiated now as a travel proposition the Atlantic yet is broad. The keenness of eyes on either side cannot see across it.

Although no friend of America the nation often turns its eyes this way, and gives a trough or two to what the barbarians across the water are doing. It has just finished a hasty survey, and expresses itself as to the result of our presidential contest it compliments Mr. Wilson as a man and praises his scholarship, but says as to the political leader: "He may at times find it difficult to fit himself to the compromises of politics."

Any uneasiness on this point felt now and here is of a precisely opposite character. Mr. Wilson fitted himself so readily and completely to Bryanism, after opposing it so long, and so saucily, there is wonder if he will stay put. The responsibilities of office are so great and, exercise such a restraining force, some of the Bryanites fear that he may return to Clevelandism—his earlier and more ardent love. His capacity for adjustability alarms them.

On the subject of the tariff, the London Economist says: "For the first time since the high tariff grew out of the Civil war, the people of America have clearly condemned it, and have marked it out as the main cause of the high prices, and the mother of trusts."

Well, well, has the Economist never heard of the democratic triumph of 1884, and of that of 1892 both of which were proclaimed as anti-protection in character. And yet protection won in 1888 and 1896, and since the latter year the anti-protectionists, until 1910 lost every fight both for Congress and for President. And was the result of the voting strictly an anti-protection triumph? We must wait for the answer. The Payne law was condemned, but was protection?

As for the high tariff being the mother of trusts and the cause of high prices has the Economist no knowledge of the existence of trusts and of high prices in Great Britain? They exist but did the Payne law create them?

Moving for Peace.

Turkey has evidently come to the conclusion first that the Balkan allies are too strong for further resistance and second that the powers will not directly intervene at this stage to conduct the negotiations for peace. In accordance with the declaration of Bulgaria that no powers that are not parties to this struggle will be permitted to act as intermediaries or negotiators for peace, Turkey has now communicated directly with the chief of the forces hammering at the gates of Constantinople and requested an armistice pending the discussion of peace terms. Bulgaria has sent representatives into Constantinople and hostilities have been suspended. There is an optimistic feeling throughout Europe not only regarding the Turko-Balkan war, but with respect to the matter of the threatened Serbo-Austrian misunderstanding regarding Albania. Nevertheless the situation is delicate and peace is by no means definitely assured. Bulgaria is in a position to dictate severe terms to Turkey, although not in a position to defy the combined powers of Europe should those terms encroach upon the real or assumed rights of the latter. In the matter of Albania Austria is disposed to insist upon its preservation as a semi-autonomous state under nominal Turkish suzerainty. This proposition, in the light of the often demonstrated Turkish incapacity to administer successfully the affairs of an even theoretically subject people, under modern conditions, is calculated to arouse strong opposition in some quarters. Russia is known to be unwilling to allow Austria to gain any foothold south of its present boundaries. The suggestion of Albania as an autonomous state would doubtless be acceptable as a means of solving a difficult problem were it not for a desire throughout the civilized world for the complete elimination of Turkey from all European dominion.—Washington Star.

BOSTON & MAINE AND GRAND TRUNK AGREE

Latter to Use Tracks of Former and Station Rooms.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 15.—The traffic agreement between the Grand Trunk and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Companies will, if it is carried through, it is understood, provide for a 25-year period. The agreement has presumptively received the approval of the Grand Trunk directors in England. Whether it has been formally laid before the New Haven road's directors cannot be ascertained. It is known that the terms of the agreement leaves the Grand Trunk road absolutely free in regard to the completion of the South ern New England Railroad, the terminal facilities at Providence and the Grand Trunk boat lines. Its other terms may be generally summarized as the closest relations for interchange of traffic, joint use of tracks and stations, joint rates, and the practical operation of the two systems as one, both in relation to New England cities and New York city.

Connecting lines, including the Canadian Pacific, will have practically the same privileges as the Grand Trunk. Negotiations over the agreement date back to last June.

EDITOR TRIAL POSTPONED UNTIL NEXT MONDAY.

Continued illness of Attorney Peters, Counsel for Giovanni, the Cause—May Go TO Jury Wednesday.

The Editor trial in Salem is postponed until next Monday, owing to the continued illness of W. Scott Peters, counsel for Arturo Giovanni, one of the defendants. Judge Quinn addressed the jury briefly to the effect that he regretted very much that one of the senior counsel is not well, and as the defendant is entitled to his presence, he would declare an adjournment until Monday. Giovanni will take the stand in his own defense as soon as court resumes. He is the last witness in this case, unless something unexpected develops, that the defense will attempt to clear up. On that basis it looks as if the trial could be finished by next Tuesday and the case given to the jury next Wednesday or Thursday. According to information from Attorney Peters, at his home in Haverhill, this morning, Mr. Peters is confined to his bed with the grippe, but

HELP THE COMPLEXION

VEGETABLES, PROPERLY SELECTED, WILL DO MUCH.

Onions Must Be Thoroughly and Carefully Cooked to Secure the Best Results—Right Use of Tomato and Cucumber.

Most of the green vegetables are beneficial to the liver, and when the liver is acting right the complexion, eyes and health show it.

But all vegetables if you would be normal in health and weight. Should you be too fat, given to indigestion or diabetes, the starchy vegetables—potatoes, peas, beans and the like, may have to be avoided; all others are nourishing and blood-purifying and many act directly on the digestive tracts.

Onions, raw and cooked, are health-makers and antiscorbutic. Eaten raw in a sandwich they are good for jarred nerves and induce sleep. Their after-math? Chew parsley or rinse the mouth with peroxide solution. Occasionally onions seem hard to digest. This is because they are improperly cooked. Change the water three times in which they are boiled and they should give no further trouble. Fried onions should be avoided. The tomato is another vegetable that seems to have a bad name. There are various rumors about it giving rheumatism and cancer. It may comfort these fearful ones to learn that the juice of raw tomatoes is frequently used as a digestive cure and is said to be good for the kidneys. So eat the tomatoes.

By the way, cucumbers are just as undeserving of their bad name as the tomato. If fresh and properly prepared they are excellent to keep one in health and beauty, as they are blood purifiers and act as a mild cathartic. Your tissues will quickly build up.

Are you nervous, irritable, sleepless? Eat fresh lettuce twice a day. Any dietitian will chant the melodious virtues of lettuce, which keeps the blood pure, cools the blood and has narcotic effects.

Carrots are well-known blood purifiers. Celery soothes nerves. Radishes are tissue builders, therefore good for the anemic woman, who doubtless, claims them indigestible. Try them with French dressing and cream and you have nature's health-makers and beautifiers in good combination.

Parsley is more known as a flavor and a garnish than as a health food, yet such it is. One physician recommends it to dyspeptic patients, and a beauty specialist advises chewing it three times a day to clear the skin. The leaves, when crushed and mixed with hot water, make a whitening lotion.

Cabbage and cauliflower cannot be eaten by every one, but they do act on the digestive organs. Sauerkraut properly prepared and thoroughly cooked can often be eaten when other foods prove harmful to the dyspeptic.

Scallop of Corn and Tomatoes. Skin and cut into bits 12 ripe tomatoes, or chop them small in a wooden chopping bowl. Set over the fire and bring to a quick boil. Grate the grains from 12 ears of green corn and cover with cold water. After five minutes drain the water off through a colander and put the corn into a saucepan with enough boiling water to cover it. Simmer for five minutes, drain off the water and put corn and boiling tomatoes over the fire. Simmer together for three minutes, stir in a heaping tablespoonful of butter rolled in flour, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and salt to taste. Pour all into a greased pudding dish, cover with fine crumbs and sift Parmesan cheese on top. Bake, covered, half an hour, then uncover and brown.

Ham and Egg Sandwiches. Chop fine one cupful of cold boiled ham, put three fresh eggs into boiling water and let simmer one-half hour. Place them in cold water to remove the shells easily, chop fine and add to the ham. Season with a saltspoonful of dry mustard and a dash of cayenne pepper. Slice thin bread a day old, cut it in rounds with a biscuit cutter, spread with butter, then with the ham and eggs mixture, covering with another buttered round. The crusts and pieces of bread may be browned in a slow oven and rolled to be used for croquettes.

Useful Hints. Before using table oilcloth paste at each corner on the wrong side a square of cotton. This prevents the corners wearing out so soon. When dusting do not use a feather duster, as this only brushes the dust in the air so that it settles down and leaves the work to be done over again. A good way to clean a food chopper after using is to grind some stale pieces of bread through it. This will be found to collect all the grease and fat and skin from the small knives. Then wipe with a clean cloth.

Very Fine Beans. Wash the beans and soak over night in water. When needed cook as usual until tender. Pour off the water, and in place of it add enough sour cream to moisten the beans thoroughly. Set over a slow fire and allow to simmer for half an hour. These are very fine.

Clam Broth. Wash one dozen clams, put in kettle, cover and cook until shells open. Strain clam liquor through cheese cloth and serve very hot.

HIS REASON FOR BRINGING SUIT

Mr. Quinn States That One Officer Has No Right Over Other.

To the Editor of the Chronicle, Dear Sir:—In view of the fact that the Superior Court has just handed down a decision in the case of Charles R. Quinn vs. Capt. Burke officer West and Mc Caffery, I the undersigned wish to state my position as to why I took action against these members of the police force.

Under the present system, all and any night officers like Burke, West, and Mc Caffery, may be called upon at any time, in event of celebrations, elections, etc., to do any duty without any extra compensation for this additional time, frequently policemen after being on duty all night, have time only to go home and eat a cold lunch, then report at the polls on a election day at six o'clock A. M. staying there on duty until relieved by the moderator, then to report back on their beats to do duty until the next morning, these officers may not see their homes for thirty two hours or so. For this extra work they are not compensated.

Therefore I ask the general public why should these certain officers before mentioned receive such appreciative extra pay for driving around from one P. M. until five P. M. looking for possible unlicensed dogs; I may add that these officers were thus engaged for fourteen half days and the result of their combined labors was the killing of two dogs and finding homes for four more at a cost of two hundred and twenty eight dollars ($228.00) to the City of Portsmouth.

If it were legal for these three favored policemen to be reimbursed at such a rate for extra service then all policemen should be paid for over time work, therefore as a citizen of the City of Portsmouth, I decided at my own expense to lay this matter before the Superior Court, and the decision of that Court proves my attitude in this matter to have been right.

Sincerely Yours,
Charles R. Quinn.

Bandmaster of this Generation.

When all is said and done, Sousa is THE bandmaster of this generation. More than any other musician, he typifies the American spirit, for he has carried, with supreme confidence in his resources, his great aggregation of musicians to the four corners of the globe. And the universal opinion is that SOUSA AND HIS BAND stand alone in being unequalled, incomparable, and the most perfect musical organization in existence. This is something not claimed by Mr. Sousa in an egotistical sense, but conceded to him by the highest musical authorities of the age from every land. Sousa and his Band have been heard the world over, and it will be an event of more than usual interest when his renowned organization appears here at Portsmouth Theatre on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 20th with Miss Virginia Root, soprano, Miss Nicoline Zedeler, violinist, and Mr. Herbert L. Clarke, cornettist, as soloists, giving the same high class and popular concert that have made the name of Sousa a household word.

Clarke, cornettist, as soloists, giving the same high class and popular concert that have made the name of Sousa a household word.

ENCOUNTERING MANY DIFFICULTIES.

Frank Ellis who is moving the Call house from the corner of Court and Pleasant streets to the Hospital is encountering many difficulties. The building takes up the entire width of the street, and one sidewalk, so that it takes much figuring to get by the trees. In getting it out of the lot and squaring away down Pleasant street it was necessary to take off a portion of the corner of the little brick lodge house. In the afternoon an elm tree was in the way by nearly a foot, but the tree was saved by attaching a tackle and hauling it back over a foot. The tackle broke at one time and a man who was in the way was injured. Price $1.00.

"I'll feel like dancing a jig when I get aboard that boat said the President elect as he left Princeton today. Mrs. Wilson and her three daughters accompanied him. Oddly enough there was a special car on the same train en route from Philadelphia to New York, carrying sixteen business men, one of whose number was paying a bet of $5000 which he wagered a year ago that a democratic President would not be elected this year.

Charles B. Prettyman a real estate man of Philadelphia who won the bet, was however, according to one of its conditions to spend $1500 for a dinner in New York for a party of sixteen business friends. The governor smiled when he learned of the affair.

The President elect will sail on the steamship Bermudian, one of the regular boats plying between New York and Hamilton, Bermuda. Besides the Wilson family a stenographer and three servants, there will be ten newspaper correspondents along. The party will arrive in Bermuda on Monday. The President elect has leased a cottage on a remote part of one of the islands where in many a previous season he has spent his vacations. Immediately upon arrival in Bermuda, governor Wilson will call upon the governor of the island and request him to consider his presence in Bermuda entirely informal and unofficial.

"I am going to try to be inconspicuous," said governor Wilson tonight, so that I may have no function of any kind while there.

BOARD OF ASSESSORS HAND MR. ELLERY ANOTHER ONE

Say that His Tax Was Levied the Same as all Other Citizens

Assessor's Office, Harmony Hall, November 16, 1912.

Mr. Editor—In reply to Mr. Ellery's criticism of the truth of the statement made by the assessors of Portsmouth as to the friendly and harmonious relations existing between the assessors and the various other departments of City Hall we can only reiterate the fact, and we do hope the public will believe that our statement is true, for we know that we have always tried to do everything in our power to create and maintain such conditions and we certainly have no reason to doubt the sincerity of the many expressions we have received that every other department entertains the same disposition toward us. We really like the name "Harmony Hall" and hope it will always be the desire of the occupants to have harmony exist.

We think those echoes that Mr. Ellery thought he heard might have been the echoes of the other petitions for the exemption of the same property that had hardly time to die out before the filing of intentions for another exemption had commenced.

It is the duty of the assessors to assess all property of whatever description on the first day of April of each year, to the person or persons in whose name such property is held. Mr. Ellery returned his inventory specifying what property was held by the company he represented and was liable for under the laws of the state for taxation, properly attested, and the same was accepted by the assessors and his tax levied the same as on all other citizens.

A number of weeks after his tax had been written in the list prepared for collection the assessors were officially notified that the City Council had legally exempted the Ellery Drill and Tool Co. for a term of ten years from taxation. The notice was harmoniously received by the assessors and placed on file and everything arranged to carry out the vote of the City Council in the same manner in which all similar votes have been disposed of, and it is the intention of the present board, as far as they have the power, to see that Mr. Ellery or his company has the full ten years' exemption from the date of receipt of such vote and according to the best legal advice at our disposal we have no right to go back of that date.

In regard to abatements the law says assessors may abate taxes for good cause shown and we have to make a written report to the proper officials what that cause may be. Mr. Ellery claims that his cause for abatement is his intention to have this exemption before the first of April and that we should abate for "intention." We think if the law allowed abatements on "intentions" that the average tax dodger would have a continual supply of "intentions."

Mr. Ellery says he only wants a square deal and he shall surely have it so far as it lays in the power of the Board of Assessors.

However, after all is said, the tax assessment on the property of the Ellery Drill and Tool Co. stands just the same today as it did on the first day of April, 1912.

THE BOARD OF ASSESSORS of the City of Portsmouth.

The jersey, long a popular adjunct in the outfit of enlisted men, has come under the ban of the United States navy, and will be superseded by the blue flannel shirt, hitherto prescribed only for chief petty officers, bandmen and officers' stewards and cooks. IN THE TOILS.
York Man Was Going to Annihilate the Police Force.

Friday night a York man, who had been partaking of something stronger than ginger ale, entered a lunch cart on Market square and at once began a tirade against the members of the police force. Officer Ducker, who happened to be passing heard the York man's threats to annihilate the whole force, and he cautioned him against being so loud-mouthed and went to wind the banks. On his return the fellow was still declaring himself and telling what he would do to that "cop" if he showed his head again in the lunch cart. The officer, like the famous ghost of old, did appear again and the annihilator from York landed in the police station and will this afternoon face Judge Simms.

EXPECT A NEW CART.

When the Democrats Take Charge Next March.

A few days ago a well dressed lady was passing along Middle street just as the city ash team was making its collections at the corner of Porter street. As a barrel was emptied into the cart a strong gust of wind blew some of the contents of the cart upon the dress of the lady, who exclaimed, Oh my! Isn't there any way in which this work can be remedied? The heavyweight of the crew, who was at the time standing in the cart without a smile remarked, Yes ma'am, we expect a new cart when the democrats take charge next March.
